Pay For School In 2014: Three New Year's Resolutions From Fastweb

Chicago, IL (January 6, 2014) –

As 2014 begins, students may find more opportunities by focusing on three fundamental areas according to Fastweb (www.fastweb.com), the leading website for scholarship and financial aid information and a member of the Monster.com network. Fastweb is an online resource that provides efficient and insightful tools to students looking to get prepared to fund their future education.

1) Apply for scholarships now. Many valuable 2014 scholarship opportunities are accepting student applications. Those opportunities include awards of up to \$50,000 and more. Some of the brightest opportunities have been compiled in Fastweb's new 2014 Scholarships article which includes information on the Gates Millennium and Cargill Global Scholars Programs. Students should also plan to continuously apply for scholarships as they are presented, to best take advantage of opportunities.

2) Apply for federal student aid. The FAFSA (free application for federal student aid) application is now open for the 2014-15 school year. This process, for new and returning students, can be complicated so Fastweb created the FAFSA FAQ, one of the many excellent resources to help students get started and on the right track.

3) Apply details to your profile. Students with complete and detailed Fastweb profiles often find the best scholarship opportunities for their needs. New and existing students are reminded to add relevant information to their profiles and update them frequently. This will assist Fastweb's system in finding the most relevant matches, and then increase the number of scholarships available for application.

This is a great time of the year for Fastweb to remind students to maintain their focus in 2014. Fastweb also reminds students that all of their tools are always available online and at no charge.
